More Roma professionals are needed to improve healthcare for Roma

European Public Health Alliance

In Slovakia, as elsewhere in Europe segregated Roma face much greater difficulties accessing and receiving standard healthcare services compared to other citizens.

An new briefing by EPHA Roma Fellow, Marcela Adamova and Andrej Belak, Institute of Ethnology and Social Anthropology, Slovak Academy of Sciences makes the case for more Roma healthcare professionals to break the cycle of anti-gypsyism, segregation, and poor health outcomes for Roma.
