

Shopping for alcoholic and tobacco products in another EU country

Fields marked with * are mandatory.

Introduction

Excise duties are indirect taxes on the sale or consumption of specific products such as alcohol beverages and tobacco products. The rules of excise duties on these products are harmonised at EU level. The purpose of these rules is to ensure the proper functioning of the internal market and a high level of health protection.

While the main rule for excise goods is taxation in the place of consumption, for private individuals who buy alcohol beverages and tobacco products for their own use and not for resale, the tax is paid in the country where they buy the goods. This is the case even if they bring these goods to another EU country. No further taxes are due. However, to determine if the goods were purchased by private individuals for their own use and not for resale, EU customs and excise authorities can look at several different elements such as, if the individual owns or works for a commercial business, how the goods are packaged and transported and the quantity transported.

To that purpose, EU countries can decide on guide levels for the maximum amount of tobacco products and alcoholic beverages that travellers can carry into the country. These limits serve only as a form of evidence when assessing the type of use. According to EU legislation, they cannot be lower than:

- 800 cigarettes (40 standard cigarette packs);
- 1 kg of smoking tobacco;
- 110 litres of beer (almost 14 crates of 24 x 33cl bottles);
- 90 litres of wine (120 x 75cl bottles)
- 10 litres of spirits (14 x 70cl bottles).

For both alcohol and tobacco products, the misuse of cross-border shopping rules for private individuals is a source of concerns for several EU countries due to lost revenues and the negative impact on the effectiveness of national public health policies.

The current EU rules of cross-border acquisitions of excise goods by private individuals are being reviewed to ensure that they remain fit for purpose to balance the objectives of public revenues and health protection.

The goal of this public consultation is to ensure that all relevant stakeholders have an opportunity to express their views on the current rules of cross-border shopping of alcohol beverages and tobacco products by private individuals and its future. This consultation will include questions on the effects of the current system, along with possible changes.

The questionnaire takes about 15 minutes to complete. Please note that to participate in the public consultation you are not obliged to respond to all questions.

Some of the questions are conditional on the type of respondent you represent, so you might not see all the questions and the numbering will be interrupted.

You can contribute to this consultation by filling in this online questionnaire. If you are unable to use the online questionnaire, please contact us using the email address below. You can submit your responses in any official EU language and respondents have the ability to attach supplemental materials.

For reasons of transparency, organisations and businesses taking part in public consultations are asked to register in the EU's Transparency Register.

36 Please provide any further comments on your above responses

Taxation is a very effective tool to reduce tobacco and alcohol use. The currently lax rules on cross-border shopping undermine public health objectives as well as member states' fiscal policies. They also reduce the perceived ability to raise domestic excise duty levels.

Public health should remain at the center of any revision, especially in the context of the objectives of Europe's Beating Cancer Plan.

Cross-border shopping rules should support and complement the specific rules on excise duties, and should not deter governments from using fiscal policy to improve public health.

37 Do you think that the current EU legislation regarding the cross-border purchase of alcohol beverages and tobacco products by private individuals should be amended? Please indicate your preference for the following potential future options:

39 Please provide any further comments on your above responses

The aim of the revision must be to ensure Member State are able to set excise duties that correspond to the desired level of public health protection. The current rules need to be amended to address the effect of cross-border shopping in undermining health and fiscal policies.

40 Think about the option that you prefer the most. What impacts do you expect it to cause? Please specify if you agree or disagree with the following statements:

	Strongly agree	Agree	Neither agree nor disagree	Disagree	Strongly disagree	No opinion / Do not know	Not applicable
The option will assist EU countries in fighting fraud and illegal cross-border trade of alcohol and tobacco products	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

Other (please specify):	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

42 Please provide any further comments on your above responses

The current EU indicative limits should be replaced by lower mandatory limits. Purchases over these limits would be subject to taxation where the goods are actually consumed.

This will strengthen the position of Member States that strengthen Member States who wants to increase excise duties to reduce health harm from alcohol and tobacco consumption.

Final comment to all respondents

43 Do you have any other additional comments?

Alcohol and tobacco industries have vested interests in the question of cross border acquisition that are often in direct opposition to public health measures and goals. The goal of commercial actors is to increase sales and profits, while the public interest would see a reduction in tobacco and alcohol use. The responses and inputs from the industry to this consultation should be reviewed critically, due to likely inherent conflicts of interest in relation to public health targets.
