10 Facts why early years are crucial!

1. Brain development: ECD science shows that 90% of brain development occurs in the first five years of life, making this a critical period for cognitive, social, and emotional growth.

2. Neural connections: During early childhood, the brain forms over one million new neural connections per second, establishing the foundation for lifelong learning and behavior.

3. Early intervention: Identifying and addressing developmental concerns in the early years can prevent long-term challenges and support better outcomes for children.

4. Secure attachment: Developing secure attachment with caregivers during early childhood fosters trust, self-regulation, and healthy social-emotional development.

5. Language acquisition: The early years are essential for language acquisition, with children learning vocabulary and language skills best in a rich, responsive environment.

6. Resilience: A strong early childhood foundation enables children to build resilience and adapt to adversity throughout their lives.

7. Life-long impact: Positive early experiences have long-lasting effects on mental and physical health, academic achievement, and future economic success.

8. Cost-effectiveness: Investing in early childhood development yields high returns, reducing the need for remediation or intervention later in life.

9. Skill development: Early years lay the groundwork for developing essential skills such as problem-solving, critical thinking, creativity, and collaboration.

10. Social equity: Prioritizing early childhood development helps to reduce inequalities and promote social mobility by providing all children with a strong start in life.

All children have the right to be raised in a family and to have access to quality health care, good nutrition, education, play and protection from harm, abuse and discrimination.

Children have the right to grow up in an environment in which they are enabled to reach their full potential in life.

European REYN Early Childhood Study

Exploring the Status of Young Roma Children and their Families

KEY FINDINGS AND CHALLENGES

REYN Early Childhood Research at a glance

FAMILY STATUS—LIVING CONDITIONS

Roma families face significant challenges regarding their socio-economic status and living conditions, such as low educational levels, high unemployment rates, poor living conditions, and barriers to accessing financial support.

6 out of 10 Roma children live in areas exposed to harmful effects of air pollution.

HEALTH AND WELL-BEING

The health and well-being of young Roma children and families are affected by such issues as inadequate immunization, poor maternal health awareness, barriers to accessing family and emotional support, and poor dietary habits and routines.

1 in 5 young Roma children do not get all the required vaccines for their age.

SAFETY AND SECURITY

Safety and security concerns arise from barriers to social security or social protection, as well as growing up in neighborhoods exposed to crime, violence, and vandalism.

7 out of 10 Roma children grow up in unsafe neighborhoods.

EARLY LEARNING

Early learning opportunities for Roma children are hindered by barriers to quality early childhood education services and other learning environment spaces or facilities. Besides the lack or scarce availability and proximity of services, language barriers stand out as the most common challenge affecting children's access and full participation.

6 out of 10 Roma children do not have access to quality early childhood services because they are unreachable or unavailable.

RESPONSIVE PARENTING

Challenges related to responsive parenting include Roma mothers being the primary caregivers without sufficient support from other family members and a lack of awareness among caregivers about the power of play for a child's development.

3 out of 10 Roma caregivers report not reading enough to their children.

DISCRIMINATION

Discrimination and antigypsyism are prevalent issues affecting young Roma children and their families. While antigypsyism remains deeply rooted in social and cultural attitudes and institutional practices, ongoing discrimination is experienced in various aspects of life, including access to public services, housing, employment, and education.

60% of young children face discrimination when accessing early childhood and public services, according to interviews with early childhood professionals.*

*The study shows that in many cases, parents were not able to (couldn't) identify discriminatory practices as such.

The Reaching-In project

Reaching-in project is a European collaboration between children and adults, aiming at increasing the impact that marginalised children have on public decision-making at local, national level and European levels. Our goal is to connect at grassroots level with marginalised children, including Roma children, children living in alternative care and migrant children, and organisations advocating with them.

Roma Children in Care

Tanja Vasic, MA Psychology,
Minority Initiative, Austria

Topic and the Team

- The topic Roma children in care, apart from being covered by very few Roma organisations and social work professionals, is mostly neglected. Somehow it seems that the paradigm of social justice, human rights and especially child rights through the prism of Roma ethnicity is extremely difficult. To be described, defined and after all resolved.
- The Team: The Minority Initiative created a Roma Children Steering Committee, an informal group of Roma experts in the field of social work. In addition, the Minority Initiative is one of the member in the coalition with EPHA, Eurochild and REYN.

International Documents Referring to Roma Children in Care

- The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) (Sept 1990)
- European Pillar of Social Rights (2017) and Action Plan (January 2021)
- EU Roma Strategic Framework (October 2020)
- EU Strategy on the rights of Child (March 2021)
- EU Child Guarantee (June 2021)
- National Action Plans (18 countries already submitted) referring to Child Guarantee

Key points according to the ERRC (European Roma Rights Centre) Report (2021)

The ERRC maintains that the institutionalization of young children is a form of violence, and the disproportionate overrepresentation of Romani kids in state care amounts to a form of racist violence. A human rights-compliant response to the existing situation of Romani children and children with disabilities in state care, calls for the immediate and total elimination of institutional care and the development of appropriate child support services across Europe. It should also be stressed that the removal of children from families purely on the basis of poverty is illegal. When this is coupled with racial biases against Romani families, it also becomes discrimination.

REASONS FOR OVERREPRESENTATION

According to an ERRC Report

- Two main categories of reasons for the overrepresentation of Roma children in institutional care:

1. Those related to the family situation, such as:

- Poverty
- Material conditions (such as unemployment, indebtedness, and inadequate housing)
- School absenteeism
- Single parenthood and unwanted pregnancies
- Migration.

2. Those related to the child protection system itself

- Discrimination.
- Note: Child abuse was considered a very small factor in placement of Roma children in state care.

Multifactor or poverty „+“ factor

Poverty: reason or excuse

It's about attitudes

Roma families MUST meet requirements

Workload, a reason for not doing proper social work. Is it?

Ethnic date: racism or excuse for racism?

In 2014, the Commission issued detailed guidelines on how to operationalise the 'policy theory' so that structural funds could support a wide range of measures to accompany reforms in the Member States. 16 Billion Euros were subsequently made available for the 2014-2020 period to support the transition from institutional care to community-based living as “a mandatory change process to ensure citizens' rights are respected.”

Deinstitutionalisation is more difficult than at may seem

Resistance to deinstitutionalisation

FACTS:

- Roma children disproportionately in care and little progress made in last 20 years
- Most Roma children in care are in institutions - damaging effects of institutional care have been known for many years. Most countries in Europe have moved away from this but Roma children still remain in residential care.
- They are in care because of lack of supportive services to Roma families to help prevent the need for removal of children to care. When care is necessary, there is a lack of community based alternatives to institutional care e.g fostering, adoption which are more available to non-Roma children.

Child Guarantee/National Action Plans

There are already 18 National plan of Actions in 11 of them Roma children are named as one of the vulnerable groups.

In 10 National Plans alternative care is AN ISSUE.

WHAT WE CAN OFFER:

- Professional Culturally Sensitive support and assistance in:
 - Assessment and research
 - Programme and/or services development
 - Further education and training
 - Social work management
 - NGO empowerment in specified areas
 - Monitoring and evaluation

Examples of programmes we can develop and deliver:

- Gate-keeping
- Community work
- Life Story Work
- Leaving Care
- Roma Foster Care

WHY IS THE TIME TO ACT NOW?

More than ever we have positive preconditions: Policy and strategic documents - Child Guarantee, National Action Plans, financial support, existing bodies (Social Protection Committee, Child Guarantee Coordinator), Coalition, ready for the change.

Roma children should not be neither last nor the least to fight for their best interests.

We are ready, and we do believe there are lot of potential partners among all of you.

Thank you for being with us!

Putting early childhood at the heart of the European Child Guarantee

INTRODUCTION

In June 2021, EU Member States unanimously adopted a Council Recommendation establishing the European Child Guarantee. This aims to prevent and combat child poverty and social exclusion by guaranteeing access to some key services to all children in need – high-quality early childhood education and care (ECEC), education and school-based activities, healthy nutrition, adequate housing and healthcare.

Ensure universal access to maternal healthcare in the European Union

The first 1000 days of a child's life are crucial for its development, they provide the foundations which may determine lifelong health. This begins before the child is born and depends for a large part on the health of the mother. A child's earliest experiences shape their brain development and have a lifelong impact on their mental and emotional health, as well as their physical, cognitive and social development. As part of a series by the First Years, First Priority (FYFP) campaign, this paper focuses on maternal and perinatal healthcare – the period from pregnancy to the first year after birth.
